July - August 2016

MESSAGE FROM TIINA ASTOLA, DIRECTOR-GENERAL FOR JUSTICE AND CONSUMERS AT THE EUROPEAN COMMISSION

Dear ELI Members and friends,

It's a pleasure and an honour to contribute to the ELI July-August Newsletter. The ELI plays an important role in the development of EU law. The Institute provides competent legal advice on a range of proposals presented by the Commission, assesses and suggests further improvements to the EU acquis, and raises debates on what is going on in the EU and how best to provide insight to the European legal system.

I gained further insight into the ELI's work when in June I attended the first meeting of the Framework of EU-China Legal Affairs Dialogue, which took place in Beijing. This Framework provides a platform to exchange experiences regarding a variety of legal topics in order to increase the mutual understanding between China and the EU. This first session tackled the subjects of e-commerce and consumer protection. The ELI President, Diana Wallis, and other members of ELI accompanied the EU delegation chaired by EU Commissioner Věra Jourová, and made an important contribution to the debate.

The issues of e-commerce and consumer protection are in the limelight in the Commission's internal work at the moment. As you know, last year the Commission proposed two Directives on Digital Contracts providing harmonised key contract rules, to enhance EU wide e-commerce. This, in turn, allows businesses and consumers to benefit the most of the Digital Single Market. I am grateful for ELI's input to the ongoing legislative process and the work by its Working Party and Drafting Committee, and its support as concerns the overall objectives of the initiative and possible redrafting. This is an example of the added value of the ELI and I am looking forward to continuing receiving ELI's input in the process. The Digital Single Market Strategy also provides for an initiative on the Free Flow of Data. In this context, the Internet-of-Things is a phenomenon that provides multiple challenges at global level, from a consumer protection, data protection and internal market perspective. This is an area where we believe ELI's views and expertise would be of great help.

In an increasingly European online world, Alternative Dispute Resolution offers consumers and traders a possibility to resolve disputes about purchases of goods and services in a simple and fast way out-of-court and at a low cost. To further strengthen the effectiveness of consumer ADR, the Commission launched, at the beginning of the year, the online dispute resolution platform (ODR). It offers a single point of entry for EU consumers and traders to settle disputes online for both domestic and cross-border purchases. The new culture of ADR/ODR will contribute to developing a new culture of conciliatory dispute resolution between consumers and traders in the EU. I am looking forward to the findings of the ELI Project in this field.

We are facing a challenging future in the European Union. We will have to cross legal paths that are yet to be fully mapped. We will have to find solutions to difficult situations. Working together, gathering the expertise where it is to be found, collecting evidence to support our action to reach the objective is essential. We are very grateful for ELI's important contribution this far, and look forward to cooperating also in the future to shape the future of the legal environment of the EU.

FEATURING ELI PROJECTS:

In only a few days, the ELI Annual Conference will gather in Ferrara some of the most prominent experts of the European and international legal community in diverse fields of law to discuss particular aspects of the ELI project work.

Some of the ELI Project Teams have already produced their final drafts, which will be submitted to the consideration of the ELI Membership and bodies. This is the case of the “3rd Supplement to the ELI Statement on the Proposal for a Regulation on a Common European Sales Law”, and of the draft ELI Statement on “Prevention and Settlement of Conflicts of Exercise of Jurisdiction in Criminal Law”.

Other ELI Project Teams will present and discuss their preliminary results with Conference Participants. The ELI Project on “Rescue of Business in Insolvency Law” and the joint ELI-UNIDROIT Project “From Transnational Principles to European Rules of Civil Procedure” are in an advanced drafting phase and will confront participants with drafts for discussion. Other projects, which are in earlier stages, will also provide participants with the opportunity to contribute to the discussions in the work of the Project Teams. This is the case of the ELI Project on “Empowering European Families - Towards More Party Autonomy in European Family and Succession Law”, the ELI Project on “Detention of Asylum Seekers and Irregular Migrants and the Rule of Law” and the ELI-ENCJ joint Project on “The Principled Relationship of Formal and Informal Justice through the Courts and Alternative Dispute Resolution”.

During the Ferrara Conference also new ideas for projects will be presented in diverse fields such as vulnerable adults, e-Justice, online platforms or tax law. To learn more about ELI Projects, visit the ELI website.

3rd Supplement to the ELI Statement on the Proposal for a Regulation on a Common European Sales Law

The 3rd Supplement to the ELI Statement on the Proposal for a Regulation on a Common European Sales Law is now ready and will be put to a Council vote on 7 September.

After the European Commission withdrew its proposed Regulation on a Common European Sales Law ('the CESL') and presented its proposals of directives on the Digital Single Market, the ELI provided a thorough analysis of the proposed instruments in the 2nd Supplement to the ELI Statement on the Proposal for a Regulation on a CESL. The successful ELI Conference on New Rules for Contracts in the Digital Single Market provided a first opportunity to discuss and consider the substantial impact that these new Digital Single Market instruments were likely to have.

The 3rd Supplement focuses on the proposal of the so called 'Digital Content Directive' (DCD). The proposed DCD offers important clarity and protection to consumers, particularly to consumers in Member States (the vast majority) that do not have legislation dealing specifically with contracts for the supply of digital content. In this 3rd Supplement, the Project Team identifies a number of issues where it believes the draft DCD still needs to be improved. More information on this Supplement will soon be available on the ELI website.

Upcoming events

ELI-UNIDROIT Joint Project on Civil Procedure: Meeting of the Steering Committee with Reporters, Advisers and Observers

On 21-22 November, a joint meeting of the ELI-UNIDROIT Steering Committee with the Reporters, Advisers and Observers of the Project will take place in Vienna. This meeting will essentially focus on the discussion of the draft rules of civil procedure developed by the Working Groups on 'Access to information and evidence', 'Provisional and protective measures', and 'Service and due notice of proceedings'.

The three Working Groups, which were established soon after the launch of the Project in 2014, have been working to produce their close-to-final draft set of rules and will share them for the final consultation with the Steering Committee in November. The Project's Advisers and Observers will be invited to take part in the event, which aims at completing the drafting stage of the first three Working Groups.

The final review of the drafts is envisaged to take place in April 2017, when the Steering Committee will hold its joint meeting with the Reporters in Rome. Further details concerning the announcement and publication of the set of rules on 'Access to information and evidence', 'Provisional and protective measures', and 'Service and due notice of proceedings' will follow after the meeting on 21-22 November in Vienna.

The ELI-UNIDROIT project "From Transnational Principles to European Rules of Civil Procedure" is a cooperative venture which builds upon an instrument produced jointly by the ALI (American Law Institute) and UNIDROIT (International Institute for the Unification of Private Law), titled "Principles of Transnational Civil Procedure". The ELI-UNIDROIT cooperation, initiated in 2013, aims at adapting the ALI-UNIDROIT Principles from a European perspective in order to develop European Rules of Civil Procedure.

Other upcoming events

The ELI Project on Rescue of Business in Insolvency Law is approaching its final phase. All country reports and normative reports have been compiled, and an inventory report on international recommendations and soft-law has been produced. Part of the final report will be presented at the ELI Annual Conference in Ferrara next week. After these discussions, the Reporters will have another great opportunity to present the draft results of the project to experts in the field, in a workshop that will take place in Leiden on 16 and 17 November, kindly hosted by the University of Leiden.

The ELI will also organise a Conference in Hull (UK), on 30 and 31 March, which will address some of the challenges of digitalisation for law and for legal experts. More details about this event will be available soon on the ELI website and in the next issue of this Newsletter.
